There was hardly a perceptible decrease visitors in town yesterday and last night. A goodly quota of gay good folk, means, followed in the train of Terpsichare and tripped and whirled in ordered and graceful confusion until the wee small hours this morning at Convention hall. A goodlier number occupied the bexes and galleries as spectators, and while reviewing the brilliant assemblage on the floor unanimously swelled the note of praise. A goodlier number still-and this means thousands-were on the streets last night, and the four theaters were crowded, as were the street fair and midway, and the blg amphitheater at the Eattle of Manila. Even large crowds of belated visitors come in last night and are arriving this morning on every train to see the annual Karnival Krewe parade this afternoon. Shop pers are shopping in a way that gladdens the hearts of the merchants, whose pockets wax exceedingly at the expense of waning piles of merchandise on shelves and counters. The slight rain yesterday afternoon brought out thousands of umbrellas at the street fair, but had no effect on the attendance. On account of the parade this afternoon the street fair and midway will open at 19 o'clock this morning, instead of 1 p. m., the usual hour, and will stead of 1 p. m., the usual hour, and will stead of 1 p. m., the usual hour, and will stead of 1 p. m., the usual hour, and will stead of 1 p. m., the usual hour, and will stead of 1 p. m., the usual hour, and will stead of 1 p. m., the usual hour, and will stead of 1 p. m., the usual hour, and will stead of 1 p. m., the usual hour, and will stead of 1 p. m., the usual hour, and will stead of 1 p. m., the usual hour, and will stead of 1 p. m., the usual hour, and will stead of 1 p. m., the usual hour, and will stead of 1 p. m., the usual hour, and will stead of 1 p. m., the usual hour, and will stead of 1 p. m. VERDICT IN VENEZUELA CASE ONCE SEEMED IMPOSSIBLE.

JUSTICE BREWER'S OPINION

INTIMATES THAT VENEZUELA GOT THE WORST OF IT.

Says Present Revolution in Venezuela Had No Little Weight-Verdict a Compromise Among Many Conflicting Views of the Case.

PARIS, Oct. 4 .- A representative of the

Being asked whether political considerations influenced the award, the justice said there was no doubt that the present insurrection in Venezuela and the consequent feeling of instability weighed to a certain for any one day in the past two mosths extent in the balance.

tions separated the judges, Justice Brewer replied;

"Nearly every point. In the first place, European lawyers do not look upon the question of prior rights resulting from rights of discovery in the same way as we do. Then the question of the nature of control and the extent of influence and relationship which the native races, and and many such matters are not viewed in the same manner on both sides of the Atlantic. In fact, the whole situation is not so keenly appreciated by Europeans as it is by Americans."

Replying to a query regarding the deliberations within the court, Mr. Brewer said that there was, properly speaking, no casting of votes, Each dudge conceded something in turn. With regard to the proceedings in open court, he said the hearing of arguments might have been con-exclusively by either an English or An. rican court, but the judges thought it prudent to allow counsel full liberty in order to make matters clearer to the president, who, after all, was not a lawyer. Asked whether, according to his own opinion, Venezuela, was entitled to more than she actually received, Justice Brewer, after some hesitation, shrugged his shoulders and said he would rather say nothing on that subject and concluded by remarking that, whatever the two parties might think of the award, Venezuela received Barima point, which gives her full control of the interior of her territory, and England is confirmed in the possession of territory in the development of which she has spent considerable money and energy, but "the principal blessing is that the two nations can at last develop peacefully, side by side, large tracts of territory, which, owing to the previous antagonism, have remained unproductive.

The Westminster Gazette says: "The result is decidedly satisfactory. The extreme contentions of both parties have been set aside, but the substantial point is that Great Britain gets more than, on various occasions, she had expressed herself as willing to concede to Venezuela. The practical feature of the case is that we have rubatantially succeeded against Venezuela, while vastly improving our relations with the United States."

The Globe, adopting its usual offensive tone, says: "For once, arbitration has not operated to our advantage. There are others besides the Venezuelans who should recognize that Great Britain will not sufrecognize that Great Britain will not suffer what she considers her rights to be subjected to the terrorism of warlike menace, whether in one part of the world, or in another, whether by a great power, or a small state."

Associated Press this evening had a conversation with Justice Brewer, of the United States supreme court, regarding the award of the Angio-Venezuelan arbitration tribunal, from which it appears that the deliberations of the court did not proceed as smoothly and with the spontaneous unanimity which a perusal of the award would lead one to believe.

Justice Brewer, in reply to a question, said: "Until the last moment I believed a decision would be quite impossible, and it was by the greatest conciliation and mutual concessions that a compromise was arrived at. If any of us had been asked to have given an award, each would have given one differing in extent and character. The consequence of this was that we had to adjust our different views, and, finally, to draw a line running between what each thought right."

MONTGOMERY CITY, MO., Oct. 4 .-(Special.) Charles Rankin, a farmer boy, took terrible revenge last night on the girl who jilted him and on her accepted suitor. when, with a single shot, he slew them both, filling their heads with buckshot within four hours after they had been made man and wife. He fired the shot through the window of the home of James Cook, where the bride and groom had just partaken of a wedding supper and then, walking a few yards away, he put the muzzle of the gun to his head and almost blew it off with the remaining load. The victims of the murderer-suicide were Frank Walker, a young farmer, and his wife, who, until three hours before, was Miss Maud Goshorn, daughter of William Goshorn, a prominent farmer. Walker and Miss Goshorn were married in this city at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon by Rev. Mr. B. D. Sipple, the Methodist minister. Shortly after the ceremony, they were driven to the home of James Cook, seven miles east of Montgomery City, near Belleflower. The indications were that he had gone to the fence just a few feet in front of the Cook house and, after breaking off some small limbs so that he might get a clear view into the house, he rested his gun on the fence and pulled the trigger, killing both bride and groom with a single shot. He then went to where his body was found, took the band off his hat, hooked it around the trigger of his gun, took off one shoe, and, with his toe in the hatband and the muzzle of project of the striking miners to march in a body to Paris, unless their demands are the gun to his head, he gave his foot a The following is a copy of the letter
